

Contents

Abbreviations	ix
Foreword by Stanley Hauerwas	xiii
Acknowledgements	xv
GENERAL INTRODUCTION	1
I. A Diachronic View of Human Existence: Bioethics and the Question of Euthanasia
II. Christian Individualism and the Individualistic Society of the Modern Era
III. The Synthesis
IV. Outline of the Book

PART ONE

Power Claims over Human Life and the 'Creation' of a 'New' Human Being

CHAPTER 1
Bioethics and Power Claims on Human Life	25
Introduction
I. The Polemical Character of Bioethics: Subjectivity and Power Claims

- II. The Exposure of the Disguised Power Claims of Bioethics along with Their Subjective Character
- III. Concluding Remarks

CHAPTER 2

Bioethics, Euthanasia and the 'Creation' of a 'New' Human Being 62

Introduction

- I. The Gradual 'Creation' of a 'New' Human Being
- II. Efforts towards Reconstructing the Fragmented Human Being
- III. Concluding Remarks

PART TWO

The Creation of Man According to the Image of God and the Prospect of Voluntary Death

CHAPTER 3

St John Damascene and the Character of Man 109

Introduction

- I. Man, a Derivative and Relative Creature
- II. The Priority of Hypostasis over Nature in Man: Man as Composite Hypostasis
- III. The 'Intimacy' between Hypostasis and Nature
- IV. The Knowledge of Man's Own Nature
- V. The Fall and the Entry of Corruption and Death
- VI. Christ, His Church and Life-bearing Death
- VII. Concluding Remarks

CHAPTER 4

St Symeon the New Theologian and the Character of Man 165

Introduction

- I. The Trinitarian Character of Human Life
 - II. The Inner State of Man and Man's Double Character
 - III. Recommended Voluntary Death
 - IV. Recommended Voluntary Death and Life within the Church
 - V. The 'Physician' and the Treatment of the Will of the 'Patient'
 - VI. Concluding Remarks
- Conclusions to Part Two

PART THREE

Christian Tradition and the Issues Surrounding Euthanasia

CHAPTER 5

Christian Individualism and Decisions on Euthanasia	209
Introduction
I. The Fundamentals of Christian Individualism
II. Christian Individualism and the Current Debate on Euthanasia
III. Concluding Remarks
Epilogue: Euthanasia – Self-sacrifice or Murder?	237
Afterword by Ulrich Volp	243
Bibliography	247
Index	259