Acknowledgements

This volume draws together and develops the papers presented at the conference ‘Descent of the Dove: Knowing and Loving in Spirit and Truth’, held at Pusey House, Oxford from 4th to 6th July 2022. Behind this book lies the labour of those who helped to fund, organise and assist the running of the conference, and the efforts of those who have prepared this volume.

We are grateful to all the speakers who gave of themselves so generously in preparing and delivering papers which were both theologically rich and illuminating, for sharing in the common life of Pusey House over three days, and then for giving of themselves again in preparing those papers for publication. Ian Palmer oversaw the administration of the conference with diligence, patience, and creativity, foreseeing opportunities, fixing problems, and even turning difficulties into opportunities. Our team of Chapel Interns, led by Jack Chisnall, co-ordinated the large team of volunteers who cheerfully assisted with different tasks and jobs each day. As Sacristan, Harry Spain enabled us to offer edifying worship by co-ordinating the serving teams at the liturgies. The Master of the Music David Bannister, the choir, and all the angels attending upon us, beautified and elevated the worship. James Fellows produced service booklets and the conference booklet, and Fr David Harris designed much of the conference publicity. The ‘home team’ who brought the book to fruition include the Custodian of the Library, Mehmet Ciftci, the Chaplain Fr Mark Stafford, and John Ritzema and Clinton Collister of the Centre of Theology, Law, and Culture at Pusey House.

We are also most grateful to Archpriest Stephen Platt, Rector of the Parish of St Nicholas the Wonderworker, and to Fr Ian Graham, parish priest of the Greek Orthodox community of the Holy Trinity, for leading Vespers on the Tuesday evening at the conference. The Librarian Jessica Woodward welcomed visitors and booksellers to the Library and to the House. The Steward Karen Westhaver ensured that our guests had a place to stay. Fr James Mosher and Carolyn Wason Dreher kept us in touch with those who planned to come in 2020, before the pandemic forced a long delay to 2022. City AV helped with live-streaming the lectures. We are especially grateful for the support and gracious cooperation of St Cross College, with whom Pusey House shares both buildings and a common life. Particular thanks are due to the then Master, Carole Souter and to Justine Shepperson, who was St Cross Events Manager at the time. The hard work of the catering team, Baxter Storey, at St Cross produced the refreshments and the fine meals that sustained us during three of the hottest days of the summer, and thanks are also due to Dedi Leech and her staff who provided a sumptuous dinner for our speakers on the final evening. Finally, the book came to fruition only with the support and encouragement of Adrian Brink, Samuel Fitzgerald, Sarah Algar-Hughes, and all who worked with them at James Clarke and Co. We are grateful to Francis Young for again producing the index for this volume.

We are especially thankful to the following sponsors whose support made the conference and this ensuing volume possible: The Prayer Book Society, the Fellowship of St Alban & St Sergius, the Anglican Association, Plough Quarterly, the Canterbury Institute, the Faculty of Theology and Religion at the University of Oxford, the Anglican and Eastern Churches Association, Jon and Laura Askonas, John and Daria Barry, and Marek Matraszek, whose generosity also funds the Matraszek Fellow, Jonathan Price. We also give thanks to those who supported us generously, but who wish to remain anonymous. Those whom we have forgotten, do thou O Lord remember.
