

Contents

Editor's Foreword | xiii

Baur's Preface | xxvii

Baur's Introduction: The Topic of This Investigation and How it Has Been Treated:

Massuet, Mosheim, Neander | xxxi

Abbreviations | xxxvi

Part One: The Concept and Origin of Gnosis, the Division of Gnosis as to Its Various Principal Forms, and Their General Determination

1 The Concept of Gnosis | 3

The Lack of Specificity in the Most Recent Determinations of the Concept and Essence of Gnosis:

Neander and Matter | 3

The Relation of Gnosis to Religion: Religious History and Religious Philosophy as the Essential Elements of Gnosis | 8

The Components of Gnosis from the History of Religion Are Derived from Three Main Forms of Religion: Paganism, Judaism, and Christianity | 11

The Actual Character of the Religious Philosophy Organically Connecting These Historical Elements | 14

2 The Origins of Gnosis | 19

The Initial Elements of Gnosis Were Constructed in the Historical Arena: Alexandrian Philosophical Religion; Philo; the Septuagint Version of the Old Testament; the Old Testament Apocrypha; the Therapeutae and the Essenes; Two Kinds of Judaism | 19

Christianity as a New Element | 25

Expansion of Religious Horizons via the Religious Systems of the East | 26

The Relation of Gnosis to the Basic Character of Pagan Religion, as Presented to Us in Its Main Forms, and Particularly in Buddhism | 28

Elucidation of the Main Teachings of the Buddhist Religious Systems That Are Pertinent Here | 30

Owing to Its Speculative Character, Pagan Religion Differs from Jewish and Christian Religion; and in Virtue of Its Principle, It Is therefore Religious Philosophy | 34

Gnosis Originates from the Consciousness of the Unity and Difference of the Religions | 36

Justification of the Preceding Explanation for the Origin of Gnosis, in Response to the Most Recent Dissenting Views | 37

Contents

- Matter's View | 37
- Möhlér's View | 40
- The Meaning of the Word γνῶσις in the Linguistic Usage of that Time, Demonstrated from the Epistle of Barnabas, from the First Epistle of the Apostle Paul to the Corinthians, and from Clement of Alexandria | 46
- The Epistle of Barnabas | 47
- First Corinthians | 49
- Allegory and Clement of Alexandria | 52
- 3 Classification of the Gnostic Systems | 55
  - Mosheim, Neander, Vater, Gieseler, Matter | 55
  - The Lack of a Firm Principle | 59
  - The Three Main Forms of Gnosis, Which Depend on the Circumstances of the Historical Elements of Gnosis: How the Three Main Forms of Religion—Paganism, Judaism, and Christianity—Relate to One Another | 61

Part Two: The Various Principal Forms of Gnosis

- 1 The Form of Gnosis Linking Christianity Closely to Judaism and Paganism | 71
  - The Systems Belonging in This Class and Their General Character | 71
  - 1. The Valentinian System | 72
    - The Development of Valentinianism's Main Ideas | 72
    - The Platonic Foundation of This System | 82
    - The Idea of Syzygies | 86
    - The Three Principles: Pneumatic or Spiritual, Psychical, and Hylic or Material | 93
    - The Concept of Matter | 94
  - 2. The System of the Ophites | 100
    - Development of the Main Ideas | 101
    - How the Christian and Pre-Christian Elements in the Ophite and Valentinian Systems Are Related | 115
  - 3. The Systems of Bardesanes, Saturninus, and Basilides | 121
    - Bardesanes | 121
    - Saturninus | 121
    - Basilides | 122
  - How These Systems View the Relationship of Christian and Pre-Christian Elements | 132
  - The Symbolic, Mythic, and Allegorical Form of All These Systems of the First Main Form of Gnosis | 135
- 2 The Form of Gnosis Separating Christianity from Judaism and Paganism:
The System of Marcion | S141
  - Marcion's Antinomianism as Related to Judaism | 141
  - The Imperfect Nature of the Demiurge | 141
  - Christ the Revealer of a Completely New, Unknown God | 145
  - The Antithesis of Law and Gospel; Christianity as the Religion of Love | 146

The Jewish Christ and the Christian Christ	149
Marcion's Docetism in Relation to Paganism (According to Marcion, Christ's Manifestation Is Mere Appearance)	151
The Significance of Gnostic Docetism as Such	153
Christianity as the Religion of Freedom from Matter	158
Marcion's Dualism; His Doctrine of the Primal Being	163
The Subjective Nature of This Standpoint	168
Marcion's Importance for His Time, and His Reforming Tendency	174
3 The Form of Gnosis Identifying Christianity and Judaism, and Setting Forth Both of Them in Opposition to Paganism: The Pseudo-Clementine System	  S178
The Form and Character of the Clementine Homilies	179
The Anti-Marcionite Aspect of the Pseudo-Clementine System	184
Recognition of What Is True in Marcion's Dualism with Regard to the Old Testament	187
Opposition to Marcionite Dualism, with Reference to Two Principles: The Relation of Matter to God; The Origin of Evil	189
The Positive Aspect of This System	192
Monotheism: God Is the World's Creator; The Doctrine of God's Nature and the Image of God, and the Human Being's Ethical Relation to God, Which Rests Upon It	193
The Gnostic Content of This System; the Doctrine of the Syzygies; True and False Prophecy	199
Polytheistic Paganism Is the Religion of Error and Sin	204
The Demonic Origins of Paganism	204
Paganism Is No Ethical Religion	208
Refutation of the Reasons for Upholding Pagan Religion	212
Monotheistic Judaism Is the True Religion and Is, As Such, Identical with Christianity	213
Identity of Persons: Adam and Christ	214
Identity of the Contents	215
The Difference between Judaism and Christianity: Christianity Is the Reform That Purifies and Enlarges the Judaism That Is Adulterated and Limited	216
Practices and Institutions Renewed by Christianity	220
The Influence of Paganism on Judaism as Reformed by Christianity: Ordinary Gnosticism as a Pagan Form of Christianity, or as a New Form of Paganism	223
Gnosticism Is Polytheism	224
The Demonic, Pagan Nature of Docetism	227
The Concept and Nature of Prophecy	229
General Assessment of the Gnostic Standpoint of This System: It Stands Intermediate between the Objectivity of the Systems in the First Form of Gnosis and the Subjectivity of the Marcionite System	236
The Goal of Gnosis Is Clear Self-Consciousness	238
Cerinthus, a Representative of the Judaizing Form of Gnosis	240
Apelles, a Follower of Marcion	241
Concluding Remarks about Part Two	246

Part Three: The Conflict of Gnosis with Neoplatonism and with the Teaching of the Church; the Further Development of Gnosis in Virtue of This Conflict

Introduction: The Pagan and Christian Polemic against Gnosis | 249

1 The Polemic of the Neoplatonists against the Gnostics | 251

Plotinus' Polemic against the Gnostics | 252

The Gnostic Doctrine of the Principles | 252

The General Gnostic Worldview | 254

The Distinctive Conceptions on Which the Gnostics Seek to Base Their Worldview | 257

The Gnostics' Claims about, and Moral Principles for, Engaging in Practical Life | 259

Who Are the Opponents at Which Plotinus Directs His Polemic? | 262

The Doctrines of Plotinus and Those of the Gnostics Are Internally Related; The Relationship between Plotinus' System and That of the Valentinians | 272

2 The Polemic against Gnosis by the Church Fathers: Irenaeus, Tertullian, and Clement of Alexandria | 278

The Main Arguments of Irenaeus against the Valentinians | 279

The Supersensible World and the Sensible World Are not Related to Each Other as Archetype and Image | 279

The Pleroma Cannot Contain within Itself the Principle of the Finite World | 280

The World's Creator May not Be Separated from the Absolute God | 281

The Gnostics Ascribe Human Affects to God | 282

The Gnostics' Effrontery and Inconsistency with Regard to Knowledge of the Absolute | 283

The Valentinian System Is Composed of Pagan Elements | 284

Tertullian's Polemic against Marcion | 286

The Marcionite Contempt for the World Is Already Refuted by the Pagan View of the World | 286

Refutation of Marcionite Dualism: It Conflicts with the Christian Consciousness of God's Oneness | 287

Being Unknown Is Incompatible with the Concept of God | 288

We Cannot Think of Goodness as God's Essential Attribute If We Take It in the Sense in Which Marcion Assigns Goodness to God | 290

The Concept of the World's Creator That Is Worthy of God, Set Forth by How the Concepts of Justice and Goodness Are Mutually Related | 292

Refutation of Marcionite Christology, Especially Marcionite Docetism | 294

How Can Marcion Set Himself above Christ? | 296

Clement of Alexandria as an Opponent of the Gnostics | 296

The Gnostics' Failure to Appreciate the Moral Freedom of the Will and Human Beings' Relationship to God, Which Rests On It | 297

The Gnostics' Contempt for the World, and Their Rejection of Marriage | 300

Clement of Alexandria as a Gnostic | 306

Clement's Concept of Gnosis: Gnosis as Absolute Knowledge | 306

The Gnostic Is not Merely a Knower, but Is Also Perfectly Wise in Practical Matters	308
Clement's Christology	312
The Relation of Clement's Gnostic System to the Systems of the Gnostics	314
How Clement Sees Christianity as Related to Judaism and to Paganism	315
Christianity's Relation to Judaism	315
How the Christianity That Is Identical with Judaism Is Related to Paganism	317
The View That Pagan Philosophy Is from God via the Logos	317
The Contrary View: That Philosophy Has a Demonic Origin and Comes from Thieves and Robbers	322
Reconciliation of These Two Views	326
Clement's System as a Whole: Christianity as the Uniting of All the Separate Streams of Truth; Clement's Gnostic Standpoint	327
Part Three in Retrospect	330

Part Four: Ancient Gnosis and More Recent Religious Philosophy

1 The Transition from Ancient Gnosis to the More Recent Religious Philosophy	335
Manicheanism	335
The Augustinian System	337
Medieval Scholasticism	338
The Reformation	338
Catholicism and Protestantism as Related to Gnosis	339
The Split between Theology and Philosophy since the Reformation	341
2 The More Recent Religious Philosophy	343
The Theosophy of Jacob Boehme	343
The Duality of Principles in the Basic Idea of the System	344
The Trinity	347
The Seven Source-Spirits	348
The Angels	350
Lucifer, His Fall, and His Significance in Ethical and Physical Contexts	351
The Dualism and Monism of This System	359
The Finite, Created World, as a Third Principle, Originates from the Interaction of the First Two, Eternal Principles	360
The Three Worlds as Three Forms of the Relationship of the Principles	365
The Human Being, the Conflict of the Principles in Him, and His Fall	366
Redemption: The Virgin and Christ	370
Boehme's Mystical Theosophy as a Higher Way of Knowing God	375
The Relation of Christianity to the Mosaic Law	378
Schelling's Philosophy of Nature	379
Presentation of Schelling's Position	379
Its Relation to Gnosis and the Connection of Its Speculative Ideas to the History of Religion, to Paganism and Christianity	382

Opposition to Schelling's Dualism	386
Schleiermacher's Glaubenslehre	389
Its Task and the Subjectivity of Its Standpoint	389
The Relation of this Position to Pantheism	392
Christianity Is the Definitive Form of the Feeling of Dependence Developing Itself in the History of Religion, and As Such It Is the Absolute Religion, or the Religion of Redemption	393
The Concept of the Redeemer: the Distinction between His Archetypal and His Historical Aspects; Understanding the Archetypal Aspect as Something not Utterly Supernatural Is in the Interest of the Philosophy of Religion	396
The Archetypal and the Historical Factors, the Idea and Historical Reality, Are not Completely Unified in the Person of the Redeemer	400
Schleiermacher's Antinomianism	407
Comparison of Schleiermacher's Glaubenslehre with Kant's Religion within the Limits of Reason Alone	409
Hegel's Philosophy of Religion	414
Schleiermacher's Subjective Standpoint and Hegel's Objective Standpoint	414
General Overview of Hegel's System as a Whole; Its Relation to the Gnostic Systems	415
The First Form of Absolute Spirit, or the Absolute, Eternal Idea of God: God in the Element of Pure Thinking	418
The Second Form: God in the Element of Consciousness and Representation	420
The Third Form: Spirit in Its Return to Absolute Spirit, in Its Reconciliation	421
The Idea of the Process in Hegel's Philosophy of Religion, as in Ancient Gnosis	422
Further Development of the Major Moments of the System	423
The Triune God in the Three Forms of His Self-Revelation	423
1. The Kingdom of the Father	424
2. The Kingdom of the Son	426
Finite Spirit, or Human Being and Nature, as the Revelation of God	426
The History of Religion as an Integral Part of Hegel's Philosophy of Religion	428
The Revelation of God in Finite Spirit: God's Incarnation	430
3. The Kingdom of the Spirit, or, the Idea in the Element of the Community	432
The Main Factors in Assessing the System	435
1. The Idea of the Process, the Views of Its Opponents, and Their Assessment	435
2. The Relation of Hegel's Philosophy of Religion to Historical Christianity. The Three Moments of Hegel's Christology; the Separation of the Historical Christ from the Ideal Christ; the Historical Christ	440
How Hegel's Philosophy of Religion Locates Christianity in Relation to Paganism and to Judaism	447
Assessment of Hegel's Concept of Paganism: Paganism or Nature Religion Is Religious Consciousness Mediated by the Consciousness of Nature	448
Assessment of Hegel's Concept of Judaism: Judaism Is Religious Consciousness Mediated by the Consciousness of the People and of the State	451

Christianity Is Religious Consciousness Mediated by the History and Person of an Individual | 455

Concluding Remarks | 455

Index of Persons | 459

Index of Subjects | 463

SAMPLE