

Contents

Foreword	ix
Preface	xiii
Note on Citations	xvii
Abbreviations	xix
Introduction: General Aspects of the Figure and Thought of Zizioulas	1
Part 1        Zizioulas' Reading of the Fathers: The Notion of Person and the Doctrine of the Monarchy of the Father	9
Chapter 1    The Emergence of the Attribution of Primary Ontological Content to the Notion of Person in Trinitarian Reflection	11
Athanasius: From the Nicene Doctrine of Homoousion to Reflection on the Relational Character of Ousia	12
The Cappadocians: The Ontological View of Hypostasis as Tropos Hyparxeōs of Ousia	23
Maximus the Confessor: The Personalist Deepening of the Notion of Hypostasis as an Ontological Principle of the Freedom of Nature	84
Chapter 2    The Father, the Ontological Principle of the Triune and One Being of God	102
Data Learned from Scripture: God is Father	102
Data Learned from the Lex Orandi and Patristics: God as the Aitia of the Trinitarian Being	104

Part 2        Zizioulas' Theological Development: The Father, Free Cause of Being as Personhood-Freedom	161
Chapter 3    The Father: 'The Ultimate Reality of God's Personal Existence'	163
The Freedom of the Causativity of the Father's Being	163
The Father as Trinity, as Ontological Principle of God's Triune Being	191
The Father as the One, as the Ontological Principle of the One Being of God	208
One Trinitarian Principle of the Triune and One Being of God: The Father as Existence for the Other for the Sake of Personal Reality	232
Chapter 4    The Freedom that 'Springs from the Very Way the Hypostases are Constituted': From the Freedom of the Father, the Freedom of God	235
Divine Personhood: Freedom as a Mode of Existence Caused in the Timelessness of the Unity of Nature	236
A Single Qualitative Freedom	256
Concluding Remarks: Zizioulas' Bold Exercise in Theological Reflection	257
Bibliography	265
Index	275