

Contributors

The Most Reverend Chrysostomos, who holds multiple undergraduate and graduate degrees in history and psychology, received his doctoral degree at Princeton University. He has held professorships in psychology at the University of California and Ashland University and was a visiting lecturer in Eastern Christian thought at the Ashland Theological Seminary and Visiting Professor of Patristics and the Psychology of Religion at the Theological Institute of Uppsala University, in Sweden. As a Fulbright Scholar in Romania, and subsequently Executive Director of the U.S. Fulbright Commission in that country, he taught Byzantine history at the University of Bucharest, consumer behavior at the University of Iași, and the theology of ecclesiastical art at the Ion Mincu University of Architecture. A former visiting scholar at the Harvard Divinity School, Pembroke College (Oxford University), the University of Washington, Seattle, and the Graduate Theological Union at Berkeley, His Eminence was most recently the Larson Fellow in Health and Spirituality at the Kluge Center of the United States Library of Congress. He is the author of numerous books and scholarly articles and chief translator of the English version of the four-volume Greek collection of the writings of the ascetic Fathers of the Christian East, the Evergetinos. In retirement, he is Senior Research Scholar at the Center for Traditionalist Orthodox Studies (C.T.O.S.) in Etna, California.

Archimandrite Father Patapios, a graduate of Cambridge University in Classics and Philosophy, received his doctoral degree in patristics at the Graduate Theological Union (G.T.U.), Berkeley, where he was a Newhall Teaching Fellow. Former Lecturer in sacred languages at the St. Joseph of Arimathea Anglican Theological College, he is now Academic Director of the C.T.O.S. His most recent publications are, with Archbishop Chrysostomos, Manna from Athos: The Issue of Frequent Communion on the Holy

CONTRIBUTORS

Mountain in the Late Eighteenth and Early Nineteenth Centuries (Peter Lang Publishers) and, with Archbishop Chrysostomos and Monk Chrysostomos, an annotated translation of St. Nicodemos the Hagiorite's Christian Morality (Institute for Byzantine and Modern Greek Studies).

Bishop Auxentios of Etna and Portland, a Princeton alumnus, received his doctoral degree in liturgics at the G.T.U., Berkeley, and is Director of the C.T.O.S. He is the author of The Paschal Fire in Jerusalem: A Study of the Rite of the Holy Fire in the Church of the Holy Sepulchre (St. John Chrysostom Press) and several other books and patristic and liturgical studies.

J. C. B. Petropoulos, a graduate of Harvard University, received his doctoral degree at Oxford University. He is Director of Harvard University's Center for Hellenic Studies in Nafplion, Greece, and Professor of Ancient Greek Literature at the Democritean University of Thrace. He is also a member of the advisory board of the C.T.O.S. His most recent publication is Kleos in a Minor Key: The Homeric Education of a Little Prince (Harvard University Press).

The late Constantine Cavarnos (d. 2011) received his AB, AM, and PhD degrees at Harvard University, taught at Harvard and other U.S. universities, and was President of the Institute for Byzantine and Modern Greek Studies in Belmont, MA. He was also a founding member of the advisory board of the C.T.O.S. An Archon of the Oecumenical Patriarchate, in his last several years he embraced monasticism and was tonsured to the Great Schema at the Monastery of St. Anthony the Great in Florence, Arizona. Professor Cavarnos authored more than fifty books and numerous scholarly articles, during his scholarly career, in philosophy, Greek classical studies, and Eastern Orthodox theology, hagiography, and history.

The Reverend Father Gregory Telepneff, a graduate of Yale University, received his doctoral degree in historical theology at the G.T.U., Berkeley. A retired married clergyman, he is a Senior Scholar at the C.T.O.S., former visiting scholar at the Harvard Divinity School, and former adjunct instructor at Anna Maria College in Paxton, Massachusetts. He is the author of several books and scholarly articles in patristic studies.